

My name is Noor Salman Nazar, and I hail from Bihar, India. Academically, I completed my Class 10+2 education with a PCBM domain from BSEB (Bihar Board) in 2022. Currently, I am pursuing my Undergraduate degree in Bachelor of Science (BSc) with a major in Zoology Honours from 2023 to 2027. My interests include watching movies and studying. Writing has become a hobby for me due to the free time I have. I believed I had a knack for thinking, and I wanted to express myself through words. I've had a fondness for poetry since my 7th or 8th standard in school. The reason I love poetry is that it allows us to convey profound thoughts, feelings, and emotions in just a few words. I occasionally write my thoughts on my Blogger website: [Noor Salman Nazar's Blog]

PATIENCE

Even you know that love is patient.
But why is there no patience in life?
Don't you love yourself?

There was time.
When life started as innocence
Then I lost myself in indolence.
Is it time to revert back to resilience?
Because the world is flowing with trends.

But the truth is, indolence was an excuse.
Because I was overused.

I don't love myself.
It's not just our fault.
People got so twisted that I forgot.
But my heart was broken a lot.
To know the brain still has self-control.

Am I alone in this fault?
Because they also did not wait at all.

In the process of loving others,
I overlooked self-love.
Reminiscing about this makes me reflect,
On the importance I failed to think of.

Should I not love myself for being old?
Because my hand is too wrinkled to hold.
But the heart still has a resilient spirit to absorb.
